Concept Note

Due to the fast advancement in science and technology, the world has become a global village with English as its lingua-franca. In this era of globalization, internet and jet, distances have been reduced and the citizens of the world have come closer to one another. This resulted in free and frequent interactions among people from different corners of the world on physical as well as virtual platforms. In most such interactions, English becomes the common medium of communication. The growing popularity of English as the world language necessitates the understanding of a variety of English that people of different countries understand. Therefore, there is a need to learn an acceptable neutral accent with minimum effect of regional varieties of English. Here comes the role of the teaching and learning of Phonetics. In a multi-lingual and multi-accent country like India, the teaching and learning of Phonetics has become all the more important.

With a belief that proper understanding of Phonetics can help people develop an internationally acceptable accent and pronunciation of English, the English and Foreign Languages University, Lucknow Campus is organizing a five-day short-term training programme on the teaching and learning of Phonetics. The activities of the training programme have been designed keeping in view the needs of teachers, students, and the common users of English.

Objectives

- To acquaint the participants with the theoretical and practical aspects of Phonetics
- To explain the common problems in the articulation of speech sounds
- To train the participants in accent and pronunciation
- To acquaint the participants with the important issues in the teaching of Phonetics

After participating in this programme, the participants will be able to understand the basic theoretical concepts of Phonetics. They will improve their awareness of correct pronunciation and neutral accent. Their enhanced vision of pedagogical issues will make them better teachers and learners of Phonetics and English.

Teachers of the English and Foreign Languages University will be the resource persons in this training programme. The training will have five hours of interaction each day. A certificate of participation will be given to the participants on the completion of the programme.

Participants

- Teachers of schools, colleges and universities
- College and university students
- All graduates who wish to learn Phonetics and improve their pronunciation

Medium of instruction will be English.
